Call for All Types of Medicinal Plant Seeds – RCFC-NR1"औषधीय पौधे – प्रकृति का वरदान, स्वस्थ जीवन की पहचान!"

#bharatayush#jadibuticonservation#rcfcmoayush

The Regional Cum Facilitation Centre of Northern Region States RCFC-NR1) at Research Institute in Indian Systems of Medicine Joginder Nagar(HP) invites farmers, nurseries, institutions, and stakeholders engaged in medicinal plant cultivation to contribute and supply seeds of all types of medicinal and aromatic plants for ex-situ and in-situ conservation.

Objective:

RCFC-NR1 is establishing a Medicinal Plant Seed Bank to support large-scale ex-situ (off-site) and in-situ (on-site) conservation efforts. This initiative aims to preserve endangered, indigenous and wild medicinal plant species while ensuring a sustainable supply for Ayurveda, herbal industries, and biodiversity conservation.

Special Focus on Wild Species & Forest Promotion:

We require seeds of wild medicinal plant species for promotion in forest areas. To ensure large-scale dissemination, we are exploring Seed Ball Technology for wider spread through helicopters and drones in targeted forest regions.

Required Seed Types:

- Endangered & Rare Medicinal Plants
- High-Altitude & Indigenous Species
- Commercially Viable Herbs
- Aromatic & Essential Oil Plants
- Wild Species for Forest Regeneration

Who Can Contribute?

- Farmers & Herbal Growers
- Ayurvedic Practitioners
- Nurseries & Seed Banks
- Research Institutions & Universities
- Herbal Traders & Companies
- Conservationists & Environmental Groups

How to Contribute?

Interested individuals and organizations must respond within 7 days latest by 15th March 2025 with details of available seeds, quantity, and origin. We are open to contributions in any form—seed supply, knowledge sharing, technology collaboration, or financial support. Selected contributors will be contacted for further discussions on procurement and partnerships.
